Dramatic fall in road death and injuries

by Dick Townsend-Smith

FATAL and serious injuries on the borough's roads have seen the highest fall in the capital.

A report just published by Transport for London (TfL) says figures show a year on year reductions in road casualties with a 62% drop in the number of very serious incidents and an overall reduction of 11% in total reported accidents.

The royal borough also has the lowest rate of serious accidents involving children in the capital and overall is exceeding London-wide road safety targets set by the London Mayor who aims to reduce the number of fatal or serious collisions by 40 per cent by 2020.

In 2013 accidents of this type were reduced by 86 per cent in Greenwich, compared to a London average reduction of 23 per cent.

Royal borough road safety experts point to a range of initiatives which are helping to promote road safety and reduce road casualties.

The fall in the number of collisions and the severity of casualties is partly seen as a consequence of the phased

Don't wait for an accident to happen

I AM writing to express concern over the road safety along Harrow Manorway in Abbey Wood following a horrible incident during half term. I was accompanying four children (my own two and two little friends) along Harrow Manorway towards the train station for a day at a museum. I have lived in Abbey Wood for 35 years and have walked this route many, many times. Now that the building work for the new superstore is well underway, the pavement stops abruptly with no prior warning and no instruction as to where to walk. We were forced to walk into the road to peer around the corner to see if the pavement returned or if another provisional walkway had been created. There was no pavement, no 'footpath closed' or 'no pedestrian access' signs at all. We were then left to try and cross the busy road in a dangerous place because the crossings are much further along. Are people waiting for an accident to happen before it is acted upon? It seriously needs to be sorted out before somebody gets run over. Surely these giant companies have some responsibility?

Annie Anderson, Abbey Wood

● A council spokesperson said: "All developers and their contractors that are granted permission to work within the highway are required to do so in accordance with current legislation and the royal borough's requirements. Highways officers regularly supervise these works to ensure the conditions are being met. We agree that the situation sounds wholly unacceptable and as soon as this report was received improvement action was taken. The traffic management and signed route for pedestrian has now been reinstated to an acceptable standard. We are grateful to Ms Anderson for bringing this to our attention."

Woolwich library Sunday opening

WOOLWICH library to open on Sundays, why? In my opinion the computers go down, far too often. Surely this problem needs to be addressed first.

Miss Opal Reid, Abbey Wood

● A royal borough spokesperson said: "The royal borough is investing over a £1m in computers, printers, internet access and other IT equipment across our libraries. When computers break down, we get them fixed as quickly as possible and sometimes technical glitches that are out of our control can affect things like the WiFi, but overall, customers tell us they're happy with IT we provide. Woolwich library has over a million visitors a year and by opening on Sundays we aim to extend the service to even more residents."

TASTY: youngsters try out some of the Fair Trade treats on offer at the town hall launch event

Spreading the Fair Trade message

RESIDENTS of all ages in the borough came together to celebrate this year's Fairtrade Fortnight, and spread the message to others.

The annual event encourages people to press for a better deal for food producers and farm workers around the world. It was due to end with an exciting climax on Saturday (February 28) with an action-packed Fairtrade afternoon in General Gordon Square, Woolwich.

On the programme was live music from around the world, stalls selling Fairtrade and sustainable products, and special films on the Big Screen.

The last two weeks also saw Fair Trade events in royal borough libraries for children and adults and in schools.

Good news for council tax payers

THE Royal Borough has confirmed that its council tax has been frozen once again. Councillors say another freeze was possible because of good housekeeping and the tight rein kept on the purse-strings over the last year. Council leader Cllr Denise Hyland said: "I am very proud that, in spite of all the constraints to budgets, we have been able to protect and enhance the vital day-to-day services that all of our residents rely on. We are very aware that all of our residents, regardless of their situation or background, are finding managing the household budget a strain. This is why we're committed to doing everything in our power to enhance the local economy and to keep council tax bills as low as possible." She said the council remained fully committed to protecting frontline services, increasing growth, and making sure that all local people benefited from the regeneration and development work taking place in the borough.

New flagstone honour for royal borough war hero

THE MAYOR has unveiled the first of four commemorative stones in honour of servicemen and women who gave their lives whilst serving their country.

Rear Admiral Eric Robinson VC, OBE was the first veteran to be honoured by the placing of a memorial stone at his place of birth in Greenwich - on the 100th anniversary of his gallant efforts during the Gallipoli campaign in World War 1.

Last Thursday's ceremony was attended by his family with Greenwich Mayor councillor Mick Hayes, council leader Cllr Denise Hyland, Nick Raynsford MP, the Lord Lieutenant of Greenwich, Dr Pieter van der Merwe MBE DL, and representatives from the armed forces.

The local ceremony ties in with a government-led initiative to honour all 1,357 holders of the VC.

Born on May 16 1882, Robinson was the son to the chaplain of the Royal Naval College. Having won a Victoria Cross, Robinson remained a highly regarded officer who served in four wars. Throughout his long career, he was bestowed with numerous awards and medals including an OBE in 1919 before his death in 1965.

The royal borough is honouring the war dead by working to renovate and conserve our war memorials.

The investment reflects a commitment to conserve local war memorials - especially those dedicated to local servicemen who lost their lives during the First World War.

The restoration scheme - developed with the War Memorials Trust, the War Graves Commission, and the Royal Borough of Greenwich Heritage Trust - will ensure that the remaining memorials are renovated and remain as a lasting tribute to local servicemen and women. It will be funded by a number of sources, including the War Graves Commission and other external bodies.

Greenwich Mayor Mick Hayes said: "We are all rightly proud of our historic links with the armed services. The freedoms that we often take for granted only exist because these people made the ultimate sacrifice for future generations. For many people, war memorials provide an opportunity for quiet reflection but they also act as a landmark of civic pride. That is why we are committed to ensuring all our war memorials are renovated and conserved as a lasting tribute which forms an important part of the borough's heritage."

introduction of 20mph speed limits on many residential streets in the borough.

In 2012 the council agreed to roll out 20mph zones on all residential streets and about half have already been restricted to 20mph. There is a phased programme for the rest of the borough based not only on the number and severity of accidents, but also on the number of vulnerable road users. So, for example, a road is given a high priority if there is a nursery or school in the area.

The royal borough's dedicated road safety team also oversees a number of measures designed to improve road safety including free cycle training and improved cycle routes, road safety education programmes in schools and special travel training for vulnerable pupils.

Also making a difference are projects like the Youth Travel Ambassador programme, a TfL initiative and part of the council's travel and road safety educational work, in which students research and develop their own road safety campaigns for their peers and the wider community.

To fund their projects, students make a 'Dragon's Den' style pitch to road safety experts for up to £300.

Cllr Danny Thorpe, the council's cabinet member for regeneration and transport said:

"We strive to get these numbers as low as possible and in an ideal world would eliminate casualties on our roads altogether. We will continue to do everything possible in our power to promote road safety using a range of methods - from physical changes to influencing the behaviour of road users. I'm really proud that the good work we're doing in this area is making our roads safer - and we will continue to strive to keep reducing the number of people who are sadly hurt on roads in the borough. Reducing the speed of vehicles on our roads is one of the main ways of reducing the severity of any incidents which is why we're phasing in 20mph speed limits in residential areas. I'd also like to take this opportunity to remind all drivers, wherever they are, that speed is such a crucial factor in road accidents and that all motorists should stick to speed limits and observe the advised stopping distance."

New council vehicles help to keep the borough clean

by Dick Townsend-Smith

A NEW fleet of energy efficient vehicles which help keep the royal borough clean and green are themselves playing their part to improve air quality and the local environment.

Last week councillor Jackie Smith, cabinet member for community safety and environment, inspected the next generation of waste services and pollution control vehicles, and spoke to teams who drive them about how they are safer, cleaner and more reliable than ever before.

The new bright yellow Mercedes Econic refuse collection vehicles (RCVs) are playing a crucial role in ensuring the royal borough meets its regular weekly waste and recycling collection duties.

As well as reduced fuel consumption, their new Euro 6 engines easily meet the most stringent European green standards with a 99% reduction in particulate matter, and a similar reduction in nitrogen oxides.

They also have much improved safety features and give their drivers better visibility of other road users.

Cllr Smith said: "I am really impressed with the quality of the new vehicles and was pleased to hear from the teams who operate them about how they're helping to deliver even more reliable and improved waste collection and environment protection services."

"A first class modern fleet will also provide long term savings by cutting back the higher costs associated with the need for regular maintenance and repairs of older vehicles."

The two white fully electric Renault Kangoo vans are used by the pollution control team, mostly to help officers carry out asbestos surveys and supervise asbestos removal. They will also be available for use by other teams in the department. The vans are charged overnight in Woolwich.

Councillor Harry Singh, cabinet member for customer services, green technologies & IT added: "It's very fitting that these vehicles are playing such a central role in limiting the amount of potentially harmful emissions. They allow us to demonstrate our commitment to invest in a fleet which puts environmental impact, as well as quality, at the heart of our decision making processes."

Full marks for Cherry Orchard

Ofsted awards 'outstanding' rating on all counts

by Dick Townsend-Smith

CHARLTON'S Cherry Orchard Primary School has been marked 'outstanding' in every way by inspectors from the schools' watchdog Ofsted.

It scored maximum marks for the quality of teaching, the pupils' achievement and their behaviour, its leadership and management, and the provision it makes for early years.

Inspectors spent two days at the school in January. Their findings, just published, said that attainment and progress among the 240 pupils were very high because the quality of teaching was also consistently very high. They said: "Pupils' achievement in this school is exceptional. They make excellent progress, and their attainment at the end of Year 2 and Year 6 has been above average for the last four years in reading, writing and mathematics."

Inspectors sat in on 11 lessons and made informal drop-in visits on classes. They talked to pupils to see how they felt about their school, and whether they felt they were well-taught and felt safe. They also took into account the views of parents and carers who completed an online questionnaire, and the 52 responses to an anonymous staff questionnaire.

The last Ofsted inspection was held in October 2009, when it was rated as 'good'. January's inspection took it to the highest category of 'outstanding', which means it is "highly effective in delivering outcomes that provide exceptionally well for all its pupils' needs. This ensures that pupils are very well equipped for the next stage of their education."

Headteacher Jan Beames told GT: "We all feel extremely proud that Ofsted has judged every aspect of Cherry Orchard to be outstanding. For my staff, governors, pupils and families the recognition that all we believe in and do on a daily basis

"We all feel extremely proud that Ofsted has judged every aspect of Cherry Orchard to be outstanding."

provides each child with the best start in life emotionally as well as educationally' is wonderful."

Cllr John Fahy, the council's cabinet member for children's services, said: "This is an astonishing achievement for Cherry Orchard. The Ofsted inspectors were very impressed by what is being achieved, and so am I. Well done to Mrs Beames and her staff, and the governors and parents who support them so effectively."

Learning festival day was fun

MORE than 100 people – parents and their children – went along to Charlton House on Tuesday February 17 for a free day of fun learning activities.

These included cake-making, painting, photography, guitar lessons, languages and stained-glass making.

"The most popular was making models of houses from lumps of clay and using stencils to decorate them," said Jodi Morris from Greenwich Community College's Marketing Department, which organised the event.

"It was a day of creativity and fun with family and friends and the chance to try your hand at a new skill in one of our taster sessions. On average people came with their children and stayed for about two hours. Charlton House is a great location, and people who were out walking in the park came in as well, on spec. "We organised a similar event last year, but this year we wanted to focus on children coming with their parents, because it was a good way for us to talk to parents, and give us the opportunity to recruit new students."

Cement the deal

Construction trainees complete first stage of apprenticeship

CONSTRUCTION trainees who have laid the foundation stone for careers in the building trade received a pat on the back from the royal borough.

Their hard work and progress was recognised at a recent awards ceremony at Woolwich town hall.

Twenty nine students were honoured for completing the first stage of the Berkeley Apprenticeship Scheme, having undertaken a six-week training course ahead of an 18-month apprenticeship placement.

The scheme was launched last year by the Berkeley Group in partnership with GLLaB, the borough's jobs and training agency and Greenwich Community College. It offers career opportunities to local young people, helping them learn life-long skills and increase the number of skilled construction workers in the borough. Developer Berkeley is investing in projects at Kidbrooke Village and Royal Arsenal – two of the largest regeneration developments in the country.

The apprentices were trained at the Greenwich Construction Skills Centre

– one of four specialist skills centre operated by the royal borough and designed to provide residents with skills so they can access training and work in sectors with good job prospects.

Trainee Cian Hegarty, 17, said: "I'm very proud to have made it this far already. I learnt that it is about working hard and that it's important to keep going. It was hard but as I went on I got to learn how to do things and it gave me more confidence."

"I would really encourage others to think about the scheme. They may find it hard at the start but everyone is really helpful and if you show that you want to do well then you get the support you need. I want to go on and get an apprenticeship, build on the skills I have learnt and go from there."

Cllr Sizwe James, the council's cabinet member for business, employment and skills, said: "I am incredibly proud of these trainees. The building industry is experiencing a boom and to have people from the local area working with companies in the borough to get work can only be a good thing."

Open door to an apprenticeship

- Wednesday March 11, 1-4pm Greenwich Community College construction apprenticeships
- Thursday March 12 from 1pm-4pm - The Point, Woolwich New Road

CHOPSTICK TOTS: two year-olds Tyler Madolid and Alfie Cook and creche worker Lien Ly tuck into lunch

PRE-SCHOOLERS used chopsticks for the first time to tuck into a spread of Chinese food for new year celebrations at Charlton's Springfield crèche.

They welcomed the year of the goat/sheep with a week of events culminating in Chinese food feast on February 20.

Youngsters learned about the traditional dragon dance and about the animals which represent each new Chinese year.

The crèche in Springfield Grove is managed by the Pre School Learning Alliance and based on the Charlton Triangle Estate. The premises are provided by Charlton Triangle Homes which also sponsors events to stimulate and educate the young children.

Crèche coordinator Dorothy Samuel said: "It is wonderful to celebrate every culture in our diverse community. The children had a great time celebrating Chinese new year as did the staff. It's wonderful seeing the children learn with so much excitement and play."

● Around 200 pupils and parents at the Greenwich Chinese Community School received red envelopes to bring them good luck as part of their new year celebrations. The envelopes containing small amounts of money are called 'Lysee' and are red which represents positivity.

There were musical presentations in English, Cantonese and Mandarin including dancing to welcome spring. The school based in Meridian primary school in Old Woolwich Road, runs classes in Chinese culture and language for around 400 children.

The Chinese way

All ages enjoy new year celebrations

CIVIC MILESTONE: A Chinese music duo perform to enthralled audience, right the musicians are joined by deputy mayor Norman Adams, GFMA project leader Louis Le Marchand and deputy council leader John Fahy

EAST met west in a blending of cultures to celebrate the Chinese New Year last month. Charlton House was packed for the Global Fusion Music & Arts Chinese New Year celebration on February 20. More than 150 people attended the event with most from the local Chinese community. The evening included art, music, dance, Tai Chi and food as well as a poem written especially for the occasion by GFMA member Maria Torre. GFMA project manager Louisa Le Marchand said: "We were expecting quite a good turnout, but not in the numbers that came. At one point we had to order more food because we were running out. The evening was a huge success and more than exceeded our expectations. GFMA prides itself on its promotion of music and arts from so many different cultures and we felt it was time that we had a Chinese event to co-inside with Chinese New Year". As well as the art that had been on display during February in the Mulberry Tea rooms at Charlton

House, there was also an exhibition of work by young Chinese artists in the old library. The chairman of the Chinese Arts Association which had collated the exhibition thanked GFMA and Charlton House. A Chinese music duo captivated the large audience while a Chinese dance by GFMA's Dou Dou Li got a standing ovation. Seventy year old Chew Yeen the GFMA Tai Chi workshop leader really had everyone on their feet as she got them trying some Tai Chi moves.

To Gordon's good health

BECAUSE we're H-A-P-P-Y!

Pupils at Gordon Primary School (pictured) have been taking part in a range of workshops, events, visits and fundraising to raise awareness of the importance of being happy and healthy.

It was all part of the Eltham school's Well-being Week when it focussed on five key ways for well-being - being active, getting connected, learning new skills, kindness and gratitude. Pupils also focused on the brain and how important it is as a body art.

The week began with a 'bring a bowl and spoon' whole school breakfast to promote the importance of eating breakfast. It also supported the 'Winston's Wish' charity for bereaved children and pupils raised £265.74 over the week.

Through the week we ran extra or different PE lessons such as yoga, Judo, Karate, rugby, dance and football. Pupils also were visited by the NSPCC and participated in a 'Healthy Relationships' workshop, while students from Plumstead Manor performed music on the steel pans in an afternoon assembly.

Gordon also hosted a Well-being Evening for families where local Greenwich health and well being services gave information including Greenwich Time to Talk and Greenwich Get Active,

The Vikings are coming

INTO BATTLE: Millennium pupils get into the role on exhibition night and act like royalty for a medieval banquet

THE Mayor Cllr Mick Hayes got a history lesson of his own thanks to pupils from Millennium Primary School in Greenwich when they invited him to open their own museum exhibition last month.

The fantastic museum showcased everything pupils have learnt about their latest history topic, the Vicious Vikings.

Pupils have been working for weeks to get the museum up and running and managed the project from the very beginning.

They independently researched subjects such as weapons and armour, religion and mythology as well as the role of women. During the course of the enterprise a logo and t-shirt was designed and professionally printed, a range of artefacts acquired and a leaflet designed and published. The team also arranged for Viking experts to attend in full war gear ready for battle.

During the project, pupils became immersed in historical and geographical research, planning out the museum, also incorporating many other subjects such as maths, art and design and computing.

The project also involved them serving a medieval banquet for families at the school. The Mayor said: "It was fantastic to see pupils from Millennium Primary School create such a well-researched, interesting and creative project that has culminated in an exhibition. It's clear that the pupils have been immersed in the world of the Vikings and all the exhibits they have showcased have really brought the subject to life.

I'm sure that the children involved have learnt a wide range of skills creating the exhibition and it will hopefully inspire them to achieve even more in their studies in the future."

A TASKFORCE of specially-trained road maintenance engineers is helping to smooth the way for travellers through the royal borough.

It's all part of a pioneering project called the Highways Improvements Local Labour Scheme, or HILL for short.

The two-and-a-half year scheme has been launched by the royal borough to improve roads, pavements and street 'furniture' such as lighting and direction signs.

It will also include other street scene improvements, such as tree pruning, better street lighting and reducing 'street clutter'.

Key to the project is a workforce which is being recruited and trained from local people who have limited or no skills, or work experience – with priority given to local young people and those without any qualifications. And the project is due to create 100 jobs for newly-trained local people.

Nearly 40 have already been on pre-employment training at the borough's newly-opened Construction Skills Centre at Kidbrook. This involves a four-week course in skills such as manual handling, working with abrasive wheels, working from heights and first aid. People are able to earn a range of qualifications, certificates and cards that will support them when they move on to find another job in the construction industry.

The next intake of new recruits is planned for May, when training will include technical admin, highways inspections and street lighting.

So far, three-quarters of people who have been on the programme have been helped into their next job, with a six-month paid work placement in the highways industry. The new recruits work alongside skilled professionals to gain the skills and knowledge of the work carried out by contractors.

Everyone who goes on the HILL scheme is given help with finding their next job through both one-to-one and group sessions with GLLaB, the borough's local employment initiative. People who progress to a six-month work placement will be paid £9.15 per hour, the London Living Wage, and will be put on a 32-hour work week rota, consisting of four days with the contractor, plus one day with GLLaB.

Nearly three-quarters of people who have been on the scheme have found their next job as a result of working for the council, and more than 30 local roads have been repaired or improved as a result.

Cllr Danny Thorpe, council cabinet member for regeneration and transport said: "Not only is this scheme creating greatly-enhanced work opportunities for a number of our residents, it is benefitting everyone in the borough by delivering major improvements to our roads, pavements and street scene over and above our usual road maintenance programme. I'm really proud of this innovative scheme which allows us – even in the face of huge budget cuts – to deliver improved roads for our residents and which allows us to find work for unemployed people in our borough – all of which is a boost for the local economy."

Building a brighter future for themselves

PEOPLE who have been on the HILL scheme have given it a big thumbs-up.

Jake Davey, 20, from Shooters Hill got a full-time job with JB Riney Highway Maintenance after he was referred to the scheme by his advisor at GLLaB. He had previously worked for his father's construction company but had been out of the workplace taking care of his dad when he became ill.

It meant his construction tickets had expired which was a barrier to him going back to work. But after completing a six-month paid work placement, Jake has now secured a full time job with JB Riney as a yard person at Thamesmead, where he ensures that the yard is fully stocked with the materials.

His day starts at 7.30am where he liaises with everyone on site to ensure materials are ordered and loaded on the trucks.

He said: "The training helped me secure the tickets I need to gain employment. While on the work placement the employer funded a forklift training course so I could support in the yard. Now I have secured employment with Riney I will now receive further training to help better my skills. The team at GLLaB offered full support and advice on a range of work options."

A JB Riney spokesman said: "Jake has been very punctual. His attitude at work is good. He enjoys working in the yard. He is very easy going and has a great personality."

Angelina Batchelor, 45, from Charlton, had been in and out of work for more than two years after previously working as a gardener. She was keen to broaden her skills and experience, and was referred to the HILL scheme by the Greenwich Families' Programme, a voluntary scheme that supports people into employment.

The seasonal nature of her landscaping work was a major barrier to her getting permanent work but she was helped with getting a supported work placement with JB Riney which involved carrying out emergency work alongside a qualified mason. This has included street signing, replacing and updating broken bollards and guard rails, patching and small paving works.

She said: "I think HILL is an excellent programme. I have loved every bit of it, right from the training to the work placement. I am really impressed with the amount of support I have got from GLLaB. I can't thank them enough, or explain how grateful I am for everything."

Her supervisor Dave Whyman said: "Angelina gets along with everyone and enjoys doing the different types of jobs. She works hard and is a good team worker."

Cllr Sizwe James, the council's cabinet member for business, employment and skills, said:

"I'm thrilled by the results this scheme is delivering and how it really is making a huge difference to the employability of some of our residents who've previously found it hard to get work. We've trained them up in an industry which offers plenty of work and they're going away with skills and qualifications standing them in excellent stead to get permanent jobs, which many of them already have done."

More controlled parking zones planned

THE council is bringing in more controlled parking zones in the borough. The zones are designed to share out on-street parking space in parts of the borough where there is a high demand. Zones in Plumstead and Abbey Wood are now being extended after residents were consulted, and said they wanted more. Another consultation exercise has been carried out by the council's traffic management team in Eltham, and as a result, more changes to the controlled parking zones are expected over the next few months. Residents and businesses in Kidbrooke Village are also due to be asked their views on parking to see if changes are needed.

Action mansion

THERE have been numerous sightings of a troubled "grey lady" who wanders the house, babe-in-arms. Footsteps are heard, objects are moved and doors slam mysteriously shut. The most splendid creation of the Jacobean era, Charlton House is said to be simply riddled with ghosts. It was built in five years (1607-1612) of red brick and stone dressing for Prince Henry, the son of James I (1603-1625). Designed by John Thorpe in the shape of an "E", its great hall and large chapel are quite splendid. It survived World War One, commandeered for the wounded, but lost a wing in the Blitz to a bomb raid. Today it is owned by the royal borough and is used in a whole host of ways. From weddings to funerals to corporate events, the house can be easily hired. The beautiful rooms combine elegance and splendour while the gardens are simply stupendous. The Mulberry Tea Rooms – named in honour of the oldest living Mulberry Tree in England – are open all week, tea and cakes and a chance to relax. But its role at the heart of our borough is essential with the range of activities, extensive. From the well-established toy library, and its wide range of games, to the frequent exhibitions and displays. Chinese

COMMUNITY HUB: the Jacobean mansion hosts a musical performance and, below, recent visitors to a Learning Festival

New Year was recently feted with live music, modern art and good food. Charlton House celebrates its 6th Annual Art Exhibition this weekend March 7 (10am-4pm) and 8 (1-5pm) - displaying the works of 25 local artists. Oona Chantrell, from the Friends of Charlton House Arts, said: "There's something for everyone from expressionist and abstract and a really fresh take on the borough". Drop in for a look or even to buy one, the proceeds will all go to charity. Looking after all this is the Greenwich Heritage Trust – a registered and non-profit charity. The new structure ensures local residents have their say and that key buildings – Charlton House and Tudor Barn – are always kept safe. Trust chief executive, Tracy Stringfellow, is convinced this will help as government funding dries up. "As a charity, fundraising will become easier and that is vital to our sustainability".

So if you fancy a stroll, cup of tea or a toy or even thinking of learning a language, go and try Charlton House for yourself. But don't wander too far from your friends or your family; the grey lady just might be quite close.

Thumbs up for half-term pantomime

PANTO in February is rather unusual. Oh no it's not, the Alexandra Players, a local theatre troupe in Charlton, might respond, we've been running one for over six decades! This year's half-term offering was a new combination, compressed panto and a short, one-act play. "A mix for all ages", Keith Hartley, director, told GT, and "the chance to showcase our talents".

John O'Hara's, Cinderella, The Untold Version, was creative and novel, the two ugly sisters, Della (Mark Foulds) and Nella (Keith Hartley), hilarious. Refreshing and light, there was even Snow White (Ruby Veacock) and a surprisingly bright "gurgling gurgles", Little Mermaid (Bethany Denne).

At the opposite end of the dramatic spectrum was a light-hearted comedy by Rae Shirley. Set in a health spa, it was thoroughly modern, five ladies obsessed with their weight. It's funny and topical and delightfully played, with Sandra (Louise Gaul) and Judith (Juliette Harrison) the standouts. Keith Hartley's direction was as usual, light touch, the production remarkably good.

Next up for The Players (May 27-30) is a comedy-farce, Philip Ayckbourn's The Essence of Love.

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

IMPORTANT POLICY INFORMATION FOR THOSE AWARDED PRIORITY

When a priority is awarded, you will receive one offer of accommodation.

The following rules are used to allocate properties to applicants in Bands A, B and C, to make sure the Council makes best use of housing stock to meet needs.

- Two children (whatever gender) under 10 years old can share a bedroom
- Two children (same gender) under 16 years old can share a bedroom
- Two children of opposite gender where at least one is 10 years old or over need a bedroom each
- Each person over 16 years old needs their own bedroom
- A couple and lone parents need one bedroom
- Expected babies are counted as a person from the six month of pregnancy
- Band C applicants - Houses are allocated to a household with children (aged 15 or under)

Only RBG tenants who currently occupy houses in bands A and B, will be considered for rehousing to another house. All other priority applicants will be considered for flats or maisonettes.

Note: There are separate Allocations Policies for applicants with priority from regeneration areas.

Like for Like Moves

Council tenants housed through priority Bands A & B, are generally offered a similar type of property to that they currently occupy, of the size they require. This is because rehousing is being offered to meet safety or other needs, rather than to provide more desirable housing. Tenants, who want to move to improve the quality of their accommodation, must do so through Band C, where applicants are housed in date order.

For full details on our policies, please see the Allocations Scheme which is available on the Royal Borough of Greenwich website and a solid 1-0 win against Sevenoaks kept their promotion aspirations to the South East Regional Premier League firmly on track.

The SLSL is also currently the Mayor's charity for the year and the support of the royal borough's lead citizen is also helping to raise the club's profile along with its winning performances.

"The Mayor's support is fantastic and brilliant for helping to raise awareness of us. We currently have five marathon runners running for us," Sharon added.

But Powerchair football is not all the club offer; in addition to disabled adult and junior soccer leagues, there's now tennis - on Fridays - as well. "We provide an environment where the children can grow with passion and build fitness, forge friendships and enhance self-esteem," Sharon told GT.

MERIDIAN HOME START LTD

BUILDING AFFORDABLE HOMES FOR GREENWICH

CHAIR AND 4 NON-EXECUTIVE DIRECTORS

Meridian Home Start, the Royal Borough of Greenwich housing company is converting to a Community Benefit Society to deliver an ambitious affordable housing programme on behalf of the Council, who have earmarked substantial land and finances to invest in the Company, delivering in excess of 500 new homes over the next five years.

We are now seeking a new Board, comprising a Chair and four Non-Executive Directors, who will provide leadership and direction for the Company as it gears up to deliver this new growth phase in partnership with the Council.

This is an exciting opportunity to influence and oversee the growth of this Company, from its very modest beginnings as a small Council subsidiary into a significant local housing provider, closely aligned with the Royal Borough in order to meet the needs of local families from across our diverse communities by providing genuinely affordable rented homes.

You will have previous experience as a Company Director or Board Member, in either the commercial or charitable sectors. Applicants to be the Chair will ideally have experience as a Board Chair. You will have excellent knowledge of issues relating to one or more of the following: housing management, property development, private finance or housing law. You will also have an ability to shape the Company's strategic approach and scrutinise performance against its objectives. Effective communication and relationship building skills are essential for developing the Board and a personal commitment to meeting housing need in the Royal Borough.

For a confidential discussion about the role, speak to John Clark, Director of Housing on 020 8921 8601.

At this stage the roles are voluntary, with payments only for agreed expenses incurred.

Please apply on our jobs page at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk. You will be required to upload an up-to-date CV and supporting statement, addressing how you meet the criteria within the person specification.

Powerchairs in the fast lane

Special league continues its winning streak

by Richard Morgan

POWERCHAIR footballers are clearly on a long-running winning streak. The South London Special League, set up in 2004 to offer disabled youngsters the chance to play football, has just been awarded £69,000 from the BBC's Children in Need.

"Now that's what I call an achievement. It will help in securing our future for the next three years", said executive director and founder Sharon Brokenshire. The funding is essential for equipment – the chairs at £4,000 each are not inexpensive – for coaches and for a broken down minibus! "We're so pleased for the children", Sharon went on warmly, "we're helping to transform young lives". The management team – comprising Sharon and her two colleagues Rhea Daly and Jessica Landeryou – have clearly found a winning formula with the team – comprising Kyle Alexander (captain), Shea French-Gibbons, Emily Campbell and Kieran Gibbons – currently unbeaten since 2012 and top of the league.
